

Jack Beers, DMN

39 years old in 1963; died in 1975

"I was there. I was prepared. But I didn't get it."

His daughter: "He never had as much confidence in himself, he felt let down. Not by anybody in particular. More by fate, I guess."

He died "with a depression that went untreated ... all due to that picture."

Co-worker: "Jack somehow felt that God had cheated him."

"Poor old Jack just had to sit back and take it, never fully comprehending, I suppose, that it was merely the difference in six-tenths of a second, and there was nothing he could do about it."
